SETTLING A MINISTER.

Chief of church trials is that commonly called settling a minister. No other settling will compare with this. A church finds itself without a pastor; it may have left for the reason that his salary was insufficient, that he was settled much more promptly than settled with that the field of labor was not broad enough for the turning over of fresh furrows, so vigorously had he driven the gospel plow; or that the field was too broad for his long overtaxed powers; for one, or many of a score of other reasons which might be named. The religious scene sends up a cry of a dearth of ministers; a hundred of churches are without under-shepherds, and there is no supply. The chances of securing even a candidate look dubious.

It is published abroad that the Rev. Mr. B. has resigned his pastorate at M——. The next week's mail brings to the church clerk or deacon several letters from dismissed, or resigned divines, who having heard of the vacancy, desire to fill it. Meanwhile, outsiders are being canvassed by more cautious aspirants for the vacant post, as to the state of the church financially, numerically and religiously. If answered satisfactorily other letters of application come to hand. In addition to all these calls received by the church previous to giving one, may be a note, by mail, of the following purport:

Dear Brethren: For the last forty years I have been engaged in legal and educational pursuits. My moral record is, thus far, clear; and now desire to spend the remnant of my days in preaching the gospel. With this end in view, &c. &c.

To answer all these letters, and you salt those to whom reference is made by permission, would require a small fortune in postage stamps and stationery; and from day to day, more and more does the published statement of a paucity of clerical husbandmen assume the appearance of a joke.

Some relative of one, or more, of the church members wishes to send a candidate who will certainly suit. Another wishes to send half a dozen theological students, each of whom is just adapted to the situation, and the church can have its choice. There seems to be no limit to the supply, and yet month after month, the church remains without a pastor. What is the matter? Let us see.

Candidate No. 1 appears. There is nothing objectionable in his personal appearance, or gestures. He preaches from a manuscript, word for word, as written. Bro. A objects: what right has a minister of the gospel to write sermons, when the command and promise is Open thy mouth, and I will fill it? And again: Take no thought what ye shall say.

No. 2 preaches extempore. Bro. B denounces: Such weighty truths as those of the gospel cannot be too carefully pondered. Meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them; study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

No. 3 might be styled the smiling minister. He threatened doom so terrible as not to be unconnected with the same expression of countenance appropriate to the proclamation of the most gracious promise. Bro. C considers the dignity of the pulpit compromised by such joyous contumacy of expression.

No. 4 pronounces the benediction while the congregation is in the act of rising. Bro. D protests against this as hasty, irreverent, and an insuperable obstacle to settlement. He does not like to just catch the final amen, as it intended to supplement the abiding rustle of crinoline, silk and satin.

No. 5 has a head of Websterian proportions, and a face as red as that of a returned fisherman, all of which he could not very well change to suit an audience. Nevertheless, Bro. E, while not thinking the conduct culpable in the position to which he has been delegated by the government at Washington, and the interests of the country, will be faithfully promoted through his ability in that department.

The old Shapton Singing Society will give an entertainment of music of the olden time at Braintree town hall on Friday evening next, Jan. 10th, and in order to call out an efficient chorus, the management solicit, through our columns, the assistance of the musicians and singers of this town. A number of select pieces will be rendered by home talent, and eminent singers from abroad. A too languid way—a too scholarly diction of 15cts., for admission of spectators, —an ingrammatical delivery—too extreme intonations—an indignant contortion of the features—a disagreeable twang—lack of pulpits address, &c.

At last a candidate appears who seems to combine in himself the qualities desired by a majority of the church. But, alas! in our respect he is found lacking, and the whole alphabet of breaths run you against him, or ought to, if they do not.

Presumptuous man! to think of presiding over a parish, as a pastor, without the aid and companionhip of a wife. The philosopher's definition of a bachelor in society—one labeled pair of scissars—falls far short of defining a widow pastor. Such a pastor is like a perfect razor, well applied—it shave!

L. D. P.

NEW ENGINE HOUSE.—The Prudential Committee, in accordance with the vote at the last meeting of the Weymouth and Braintree Fire District, have purchased a lot of land belonging to Mr. E. G. Turrell, on the corner of Broad and Stetson streets, and have issued a notice for proposals for building a house, from plans drawn by Geo. S. Baker. The building will be two stories, 20x32, and will contain ample accommodation for the engine on the lower floor, and a hall above. The committee designed at first to locate the house on the lot of land adjoining the homestead of Mr. Samuel Reed, on Washington street, owned by Hosea Pratt, and excavation of the "crack" was commenced, but we learn that the residents on Front street were unanimously in favor of bringing the engine to a location more desirable to them, that the committee needed to their request. The lot was valued at about $200, and the building will probably cost $1200.

SCHOOL MATTERS.—Nathan Willis, Esq. principal of the High School at North Weymouth, has accepted a call to the Hillside Grammatical School for Girls, at Andover Plain, with a salary of $1500, an increase of $500 over the salary he received in this town. Mr. Willis is a thorough instructor, and his departure from town is regretted by all who were conversant with his ability as a teacher and character as a citizen. Mr. Alfred Barker, late of Roxbury, has been appointed to the position vacated by Mr. Willis.

The grammar school taught by Miss Lizzie Wood, united in a christmass festival on Wednesday of last week, and the scholars surprised their teacher with presents of an elegant handkerchief box, spool box, and wristers. The room was finely decorated with evergreens, and tables were spread, loaded with refreshments, while a christmas tree bore the usual fruit of christmas offerings.

LECTURES.—A course of interesting lectures will be given in the Universal Church, Weymouth Landing, beginning Monday, Jan. 6, 1868.

This course of lectures is provided in the hope of furnishing to the people at once instruction and amusement; and it is believed that they will meet the needs and gratify the taste of this community. These lectures will be entirely free from any sectarian influence as they are not subject to the direction of any religious society. The subjects will be various, and the lecturers persons from different departments of business and representing different shades of religious belief.

BRAINTREE.

It is both amusing and instructive to look over the records of the times immediately preceding the revolution, and learn the way in which our forefathers sometimes defended their liberties showing us how well they understood their rights and privileges, and the measures they took to preserve them. The following transaction well illustrates the character of those men who were determined not to be made slaves!

In 1774 General Gage was appointed Governor of Massachusetts, and an adjutant was made by the English Government to nip the rebellious spirit of the people in the bud, and reduce them to peace and quietness by remodeling the government of Massachusetts, an act of Parliament having been passed for that purpose. Under this act General Gage sent out warrants to obtain juries that might be used to restore to his authority the impeached Chief Justice Oliver. This purpose the people were determined to defeat, and they took immediate measures to obtain these obnoxious warrants and destroy them. Some of these warrants were sent to John Vining, a Deputy Sheriff under the King, for distribution. One of these warrants was for Stoughton, now Sharon, which the Sheriff carried and delivered to the Constable there. He had got about six miles on his return home, when he was overtaken by sixty men on horseback who surrounded him, and told him that unless he returned with them and demanded back the warrant, and committed it, upon which they quietly dispersed and left him to his own reflections. But the sheriff's trouble did not end here; he had more of these warrants, and the people of Braintree were determined that he should not serve them, and to carry out this purpose they assembled at his house on Sunday evening to the number of about two hundred, and demanded of him to deliver up two warrants; upon his producing them, they put it to vote whether they should burn them, and they passed in the affirmative. They then made a circle and burned them, then called a vote whether they should burn, but it being Sunday evening it passed in the negative but they were not yet satisfied, for soon after they assembled to the number of two or three hundred, and swore vengeance upon him unless he took a solemn oath; this demand he complied with.

At the meeting above referred to a desire was expressed to form a physician's club for the purpose of discussing medical subjects, and for the mutual improvement of its members. The first meeting of the Weymouth Medical Club was held at the house of Dr. Tower, on Thursday evening 26th inst. Two members were absent, being ill, and the remaining members, being all of the same age, were young ladies, and the club was organized under the title above designated. No formal action was taken at this the first meeting, excepting to mark out a general plan of action. It was decided to appoint at each meeting a subject for discussion at the next. It was also suggested that one of the members open the discussion with a written article. Voted to hold the meetings every two weeks, at the residences of the members.

The subject of Pneumonia was assigned for discussion at the next meeting and Dr. Tower was instructed to prepare a paper. Adjourned to meet at the house of Dr. Fossburgh on Tuesday evening, January 3, 1868.

PIQUANTS.

An old man in Southern Ohio was interrupted while in a James, well known for his coffee, and coming to the upper world only to be shot at 5200 ft.

What is the difference between trial and legal? And if you failed to earn well, rise again, but try again.

An editor became mortal, and was created captain. On parole, instead of two pieces front advocacy, he unanimously hawled out "two dollars a year in advance!"

A lithesome Connecticut editor says recently, a young girl of scrupulous beauty, who had no teeth! He explains by adding that she was only six months old.

"Can't you let our folks have some eggs?" said Dan'l W. Weymouth, opening the door and sticking in a little straw-colored head, and a pair of very mild blue eyes just enough to require nothing more than a look from the cook, "I can't stay the process of the kitchen."

The Stevens house is well and we know how to make it just so.

Known to us as the "old house," it is close proximity to the corner of South and Washington Streets, and is well known to all the principal Railroad and Steamboat depots.

The Stevens house has never before been occupied by the public. It can be aranged to suit any taste.

THE WEYMOUTH GAZETTE

FRIDAY, JAN. 24, 1868.

GEO. H. CLARK, EDITOR IS THE ONLY AUTHORIZED GENERAL AGENT FOR THE GAZETTE, AND ALL EXCERPTS GIVEN BY HIM WILL BE ACKNOWLEDGED.

INFLATION.

A leading journal of New York city has devoted a column to the question of wages of workmen, in which it states the ground that the demands of labor are exorbitant, and much beyond the ability of capital to meet.

This position is fortified by the assertion that workmen in that city, in some cases receive a rate of wages, ($3 dollars a day) which many of the employers would be glad to obtain for their own labor's reward. The editor referred men who work at odd jobs, in ship repairing, &c., receive a higher rate of remuneration for their labor than others, for the reason that their labor is very fluctuating weeks and months sometimes changing before they can obtain a job—and their average pay for a year would consequently be even below that of men who are steadily employed. The journal alluded to refers to the deavers of various kinds of workmen to obtain an advance in wages at a time of business paroxysm, as a measure of safety from starvation, the business portion of the village would have been destroyed. The engine companies were provided with a general valuation prepared by Mr. Gen. Wheeler, and horses and teams were furnished to carry the men and the engine home.

Mr. Henry B. Pierce, of Abington, furnishes the following list of the occupants of the burned buildings:—Mansion Building was occupied in the basement by Chas. S. Smith, grocer; first floor, J. A. and C. L. Thayer, good's second floor, Mary L. Shaw, milliner, G. E. Donham, druggist, and druggist of the King Phillip Hall Club, who had moved in the previous evening; the hall overhead was occupied by the Good Templar Lodge, who had nearly all their fixtures. The J. Harwood building (next north of Mansion Hall) was occupied in the basement by C. H. and D. H. Gruber, grocers; first floor, E. A. Wheeler, station boats and shoes; Randall, express office; second floor, J. B. Harris, law office, where books and papers were saved by his wife, he being absent; the large dwelling house adjoining the Harwood building, was occupied by Messrs. W. H. Bates, E. Arnold, and C. L. Rice. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Engines were sent for from North Bridgewater and Randolph, as well as Weymouth, but were stopped on the way after the fire had been extinguished. Much insurance must, of course, and groceries were strewn about profusely. It is not credible in a town of ten thousand inhabitants that not so much as a hook and holder company exists in the place. The total loss is estimated at $25,000.

STATE HOUSE, Jan. 24, 1868.

Dear Gazette:—We are pleased to notice that Mr. Speaker Lowell of the House, possessed all the essentials to do justice to the Chair. To a gentlemanly carriage and fine personal presence, he combined affable winning manners, a full melodious voice, distinct enunciation and evident mastery of Parliamentary Law. To dissolve the impressions of any of our friends, who imagine that the "License" portion of the Homestead bill must have certain inflections caused by "I" and "the" of "Speaker," we can assure, upon the most searching scrutiny hereabouts, with our touch-stone test, that scarcely a member knows whether "Speaker" keeps "Hock" or "Sea weed" Tonic, or that George Young is a fan of sponer after a vendor of ice creams. Individually and collectively, the members appear topit. There seems a kind of "on to" to Richmond's vigor and spunkiness, and "off" to those of Quincy, and Amherst's. The "Navy" of the House, and the "Army" of the Senate, are, however, the people over whom we widen our gaze, and when the returning tide finds still at their posts.

PROTECTION FOR BANK OFFICERS.—In these times of audacious raids upon bank officers, it is requisite that the utmost security against personal violence should be afforded to the officers of banking institutions. The directors of the 1st National Bank of South Weymouth have recently remodeled their banking-house with all the modern improvements for protection, a heavy wire screen enclosing the counter, and the entrance door to the interior opening on the inside. The vault is fitted up with burglar proof safes, while loaded revolver no fit to be promptly captured into the case, of any rogue who attempts a "Broadway" or "Milan" seizure. With such beliefs the cashier can fight it out on his line, with success.

PERSONAL.—The Donald (Wisc.) Times has secured the services of Rev. Andrew J. Cushing, formerly of East Abington, as its editor-in-chief. The publisher thinks that by this move he will be able to get up a more readable paper, one open in which is shared by the many friends in this section of the world.

FAIR AND LEAVES.—The ladies of the Universal society at North Weymouth will hold a fair and levee next Thursday and Friday evenings, the features of which will be dramatic performances, music, and dancing. Fancy articles and refreshments will be offered for sale. The society have purchased the lot corner of Seaside and Bridge streets, and when the necessary money has been raised, will proceed to build a church edifice.

Meetings are held each Sunday evening at Rockwood. The party broke up early leaving Mr. Shaw, it is hoped, a happy man.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH.
Mr. Editor.—Being one of those present, I feel it my duty to notice a social gathering at the house of Mr. Henry Shaw, on Union St., South Weymouth, Tuesday evening, Jan. 14. As Mr. Shaw is about to take up a companion for life, it was thought best by a few of his friends to call and see if his house was ready. Arriving about 8 o'clock, we found to our surprise the house filled from top to bottom with people. The party was full of glee, the festivities being mixed with music both instrumental and vocal. Many were present from all parts of this town and neighboring towns. At 10 o'clock, light being the most useful thing, the company having purchased a splendid lamp of the newest pattern, the same was presented by A. Raymond, Jr., who kept the company in a roar for a half hour.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, John S. Fogg was re-elected President, and Louis Read Vice-President.

REPRESENTATIVE ELECTION.—At an election in Braintree on Tuesday, E. Watson Arnold, representative from Braintree, kept open house last Wednesday evening, for the social entertainment of his political friends, who gathered in force and passed the evening in a pleasant manner.

Head Quarters Post, No. 2, Dept't of Mass., G. A. R., N. Weymouth Jan. 17, 1868.

At a Regular Encampment of this Post, held this evening, it was voted to publish the following extract from general order No. 9, in order to correct any erroneous impressions that may have arisen in the minds of soldiers, or others, that the Grand Army of the Republic is in any way connected with politics. Like Masonry, Odd Fellowship, and other similar secret organizations, it ignores politics entirely. The great and main object of the order, is the protection and assistance of disabled soldiers and sailors, the widows of deceased soldiers and sailors, and the care, support, and education of their children. The order is composed mostly of retired military men, who have one and all, fought against Traitors and Rebels, who design by this organization, to preserve those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound them together with the strong cords of love and affection in battles, sieges, engagements and marches, and to establish and defend their rights, with a view to inculcate a proper appreciation of their services to their country, and to a recognition of such services and claims by the American people.

Head Quarters Dept't of Mass., Boston, Nov. 23, 1867.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 9.

1. In order to secure unity, promote concord, establish fraternity of feeling and action throughout the department, it is essential that we should not compromise our position by entering the arena of politics, upon every issue that may be created, as such issues are ever changing, and are now numbered with the past; therefore all political action on the part of posts in this command, is forbidden.

All resolutions, and any official action taken by posts and designed for publication must invariably be forwarded through the proper channels to these Head Quarters, for the approval of the Grand Commander. Any intimation or violation of this order will be immediately reported by Posts and District Commanders.

VI. Hereafter every applicant for enlistment and muster will be required to present his application thereto to the post nearest his place of residence, and no post will muster any applicant other than resident in their immediate vicinity, without the consent previously obtained, of the post nearest which the applicant resides.

State House, Jan. 24, 1868.

Dear Gazette:—We are pleased to notice that Mr. Speaker Lowell of the House, possessed all the essentials to do justice to the Chair. To a gentlemanly carriage and fine personal presence, he combined affable winning manners, a full, melodious voice, distinct enunciation and evident mastery of Parliamentary Law.

To dissolve the impressions of any of our friends, who imagine that the "License" portion of the Homestead bill must have certain inflections caused by "I" and "the" of "Speaker," we can assure, upon the most searching scrutiny hereabouts, with our touch-stone test, that scarcely a member knows whether "Speaker" keeps "Hock" or "Sea weed" Tonic, or that George Young is a fan of sponer after a vendor of ice creams. Individually and collectively, the members appear topit. There seems a kind of "on to" to Richmond's vigor and spunkiness, and "off" to those of Quincy, and Amherst's. The "Navy" of the House, and the "Army" of the Senate, are, however, the people over whom we widen our gaze, and when the returning tide finds still at their posts.

Dear Gazette:—A party of some 20 members Union Lodge of G. T. surprised Mrs. Goodman, a member of the Lodge, last Saturday evening, with a "demonstration" visit, furnishing her a general supply of provisions and also making up a purse of money, which was presented by the W. C. C. C. P. boy. Their visit, as may be supposed, called forth expressions of thankfulness from the recipient of their bounty, and after a sociable hour had been passed, the party retired, realizing that it is more blessed to give than to receive."

HINTS FOR SIGN PAINTERS.

The person who has a love for beautiful and correct letters when made upon signs and show-wards, the frequent appearance of distorted and ill-proportioned letters must be painful indeed. We often see a V or a W with some other letter, often an A, one encroaching upon the space which the other should occupy. To see an utter defiance of all rules of proportion in regard to the space the letters should occupy—one occupying more space than they should, while others are cramped—produces in us a painful impression.

The Roman letter, as commonly used by sign painters, is capable of being extended from its common width, and is also capable of being condensed, and is known by the terms, common, extended, and condensed letters, each having the same height, but different widths, and these three projections are ample sufficient for ordinary signs. The makers of type have extra-condensed and also extra-condensed letters, but their form on the sign-board is not often called in requisition.

When the capital letters are placed in the order of their width, we noticed that I occupies the least space, J is a little wider, C, L, S, and Z occupy the third space, O and Q the fourth, B, D, E, F, P, T, and the fifth, G, I, V, and Y the sixth, A, K, R, and X the seventh, H and N the eighth, M the ninth, and W the tenth; E and O occupy the space between the two last spaces. This dividing the alphabet may be of some assistance in those who are sometimes at a loss what proportional width to give letters when grouped together.

The figures or Arabic numbers may be divided into four divisions, of which 3 occupies the least, and 7 the next width; then follow 2, 5, 4, 6, 8, and 9, and last the 0, which is generally made a little wider than the width occupied by 2, 3, 4, etc. The figures 1, 2, and the capital letter I occupy the same width, with the exception of the 0, which occupies the same space as L, S, and Z; the other figures are the same width as the capital letter J.

Of the small letters, or, as they are termed by printers, the lower-case letters, i, j, l, m, n, the less and the same width; and t, o, w, which are a little wider, the third space is filled by e, r, u, v, and s. The fourth place is occupied by g, a, b, d, p, q, and v. The fifth by h, k, m, n, x, and y. The seventh and w. The space occupied by h, d, m, and n is the same as that of the capital letters B, D, etc., which very nearly corresponds to the small letters h, k, etc. The space occupied by i, l, m, n, x, and y is the same as that in which the capital M is contained. The S has the same width as j.

In a comparison of the small letters with the capitals we find that i, j, and l are less in width than the capital I, which very nearly corresponds to the space occupied by l and t. The third width of the small letters is between i and j, and the fourth space the same as the capital J. The fifth space small letters, h, k, etc., is the same as the third space of capitals, C, L, S, and Z, and m and w are less in width than the same when capitals.

If the artist or mechanic who would form well proportioned letters would group the alphabet together in these divisions, he has a key to their proportional width, and consequently their formation. As I occupy the least space, that letter may be taken as a standard, and the eye and judgment with a reference to the scale of widths will enable him to obtain a very good idea of the space others should occupy.

If I be taken as one width, A, and others of its group, the seventh occupy each twice that width; the third group, C, etc., once and a half; and by spacing with pairs of dividers, an alphabet the correct width that the space of each division should occupy can be readily ascertained.—Artisan.

JACKSON'S PRONUNCIATION.—In proof that Jackson had once been a pupil of Dr. Waddell, an anecdote was related to me by one of the General's most intimate friends, and fellow officers. General Jackson, as his associates remember, had certain peculiarities of pronunciation to which he always adhered. For example, he would pronounce the word devise dey-vee, as though it were written dey-vee, with a strong accent upon the e. One day, during his Presidency, he so pronounced it, when in conversation with a foreign minister, who, though no English, had been educated in England, and planned himself upon his knowledge and nice pronunciation of the English language. "Devise-vee," said the General, with emphasis. The Ambassador lifted his eyebrows slightly, and, in the course of a sentence or two, took occasion to pronounce the word correctly.

"I repeat it, Mr. ——" continued the President; this measure is essential to the devi-vee-ment of our resources."

"Really, sir," replied the ambassador, "consider the devi-vee-ment of your country, — with a marked accent upon the e."

"Upon this the General exclaimed, — 'Excuse me, Mr. ——. You may call it devi-vee-ment if you please; but I say devi-vee-ment, and will say devi-vee-ment as long as I reverence the memory of good old Dr. Waddell!'"

A good story is told of camp meeting John Allen. At an social gathering of ministers of different denominations, a Baptist brother made a display of objection to the Methodist policy, because, as he said, there was too much machinery to it." "Yes, said brother Allen, there is a good deal of machinery, but it don't take much to run it as the Baptist."

Bishop Simpson, in a recent lecture, predicted that in a very few years we would have Chinese servants in our houses.

Patriotism referred to this at the breakfast-table this morning, when little Minnie, after while, came to his chair and whispered, "Oh, papa, won't it be nice?"

we shall have a Chinese servant, and she will eat all the rats, so we won't have to keep a cat?"

A Western paper tells a good story. Theodore Tilton had just entered a hotel in a Western town, and was going upstairs, very travel stained, to change his coat, preparatory to lecturing, when he encountered on the second floor an over-dressed and vulgar woman, laying her hand on Theodore's arm. "No, madam," was the quiet response, "are you the chamberlain?"

AMERICAN ORGANS.

The American Organs are the only real Reed Organs now before the Public. The only Organ having a Reverberating Sound Box or Wind Chamber. Made in the best style, and constructed in the Southern Island Board having the parts of the Organ in one piece, giving the organ tone and without which the Organ becomes nearly lifeless. Made in an ornate case. The American Organs are not inferior to any in Europe. They have the large Organ Bellows, giving a clear and distinct tone. These, with their extreme fine voicing of the Reeds and perfecting of the Organ tone, make them the most perfect Organ known. The sound produced by the American Organs place them in the front rank as the best, and command a higher price than any other Organ. A small exhibition of them, in comparison with others, will quickly show their superiority. New Boston—THE AMERICAN ORGAN, Organ's Parlor, Weymouth, Mass., $1000.00, and up to $2000.00.
